How to Break Any Witchcraft Spell - How to Reverse a Hex

There are many ways by which we can reverse or invalidate the effect of our spells or the spells that others cast on us. There are many ways to break a witchcraft spell:

Hex breakers are meant to neutralize the hex by breaking the evil portion of the spells

Uncrossing spells simply remove the hex in any in the spell. If there was no wicked intentions, then the spell will have no effect

Antidote spells neutralize the effects of the spell. It does not further do any harm to the person who cast the spell.

Reversing Spells not only break the evil intentions of the spell but sends the effects back to the source of the spell.

Reversing spells are usually not recommended because the person who worked the original spell (with or without a hex) may also repeat the spell if s/he suspects that it is not working. So hex breakers, antidote spell or uncrossing spells are recommended to stop the vicious cycle. Reversing spells also may incur karmic debt since you are intentionally hurting someone.

Here are some hex removal spells:
